

AI meeting summary:

Summary:

- The transcript discusses various topics, including the use of fireflies for summarizing, meetings with Nipun Mehta, and the website development progress. The conversation also touches on personal matters such as spending time with family and catching up with friends. Additionally, the discussion covers administrative updates related to database transfers, philanthropy committees, and featuring humanitarian award winners on the website homepage.
- Marilyn Turkovich discusses the idea of implementing a certification process for businesses, organizations, partners, and cities. She is working on creating a guidebook for this process and hopes to have it ready by Tuesday's meeting. Marilyn also mentions her interactions with the Brahma Kumaris group in Jaipur and their upcoming launch event. She has been communicating with them and other partners through letters and plans to surprise Arun with more information. Ole Kjörrefjord brings up his work on creating a community intelligence dashboard for setting compassionate goals and monitoring progress. The conversation shifts towards collaborating with other groups like SA 2020 portfolio and using AI technology to create an Impact Report that showcases compassion in different communities. Cristina Gzz shares her experience in certification processes within Quintro, highlighting the importance of working together as compassionate cities rather than just spreading awareness. Gard suggests forming a group to develop this Impact Report using AI technology, involving youth members from different backgrounds including Hinduism. Marilyn talks about revamping the India team and ongoing communication challenges with Amin's team regarding healthcare sector projects and working with youth in Pakistan and India. Lastly, she mentions collaborations with Emory University's CIT program, Shift initiative, C learning program, CBCT training, facilitation bridges between these programs expected to be announced soon.
- Marilyn Turkovich discusses the anticipated cost of moving from CIT to CBCT and the residency requirement. She also mentions that anyone with a certificate can move in any direction they want, but it impacts their work. Marilyn expresses confusion about her role in GCC and mentions upcoming meetings with Rick Hansen and Matt to discuss incorporating the charter into their programs. There is a discussion about getting Hindu youth representation and planning for the first Congress of Compassion in South Africa in 2025. Ann Helmke provides an update on board roles and responsibilities, while Ole Kjörrefjord shares plans for creating small, intimate groups to support each other's work for changing the world.
- Marilyn Turkovich discusses the possibility of hiring a youth strategist and the associated costs. Babs shows interest but is not committed, Moses can only provide minimal help, and Anum is interested with an estimated cost of $25,000. They plan to make an announcement at the December board meeting. Gard mentions his excitement about Inquentro and his meeting with trauma expert Thomas Hubble. Laura shares updates on her work with police departments and the Well Being Economy Initiative for Southern California. She also mentions attending the IDG conference in Stockholm and launching La hub for LA county. The transcript concludes with some general remarks from Marilyn Turkovich about upcoming events and AI bots.
- Gard mentions Mr. Rogers and wishes him a beautiful day. Cristina Gzz thanks Gard and says peace.

Action items:

- From the transcript, there are several follow-ups and action items that were discussed:
- 1. Review and overview of the website: Marilyn mentioned that they are working with individual cities to populate their pages on the website. They plan to continue meeting with cities to help them take control of writing up what they want on their pages.

- 2. Transfer of the database: Marilyn mentioned that they are cleaning up the database and adding information to make it more workable. They hope to get others involved in signing up with the charter.
- 3. Philanthropy committee: Marilyn mentioned that they have been meeting with people outside of the charter board to see if they are interested in joining the philanthropy committee. They have had positive conversations with some individuals, including Will Rucker from Las Vegas and Jocelyn Gilman, who came through Robin Kenrek.
- 4. Certification process: Marilyn discussed the idea of certifying businesses, organizations, partners, and even cities. She mentioned that they are working on a guidebook for certification and hope to have it in draft form soon.
- 5. Collaboration with Nipun Mehta: Marilyn mentioned that she had a conversation with Nipun Mehta and Prita Bansal. They are interested in working together to create incentives for mayors and cities to implement compassionate initiatives. Nipun is developing an artificial intelligence platform that could support this effort.
- 6. Collaboration with GCC (Global Compassion Council): Marilyn mentioned that they are in discussions with Matt, the operational director for GCC, to explore collaboration opportunities. They want to avoid duplicating the work of the charter and focus on building a network of organizations working in the field of compassion.
- 7. Governance committee: Ann Helmke discussed the need to clarify the roles and expectations for board members. They are sending out questions to potential board members to ensure they understand the commitment required.
- 8. Youth strategist position: Marilyn mentioned that Babs, Anum, and Moses have been meeting regularly. Babs is committed to her current work and Anum is interested in the youth strategist position. They plan to create a role description and task list, open it up for applications, and make a decision in mid-November.
- 9. Small intimate circles: Laura emphasized the importance of creating small intimate circles for collaboration and support. She shared her experience with a group in her department and how it was restorative and validating.
- 10. Well-Being Economy Initiative: Laura mentioned their partnership with Open Future Coalition and Ecosiv for the Well-Being Economy Initiative in Southern California. They are working on bringing different sectors together to promote well-being and track progress using metrics.
- 11. IDGS (Inner Development Goals Summit): Laura mentioned her participation in the IDGS conference in Stockholm and the launch of La hub for LA County. The focus is on human systems, mindfulness, dialogue, and collaboration for well-being.
- 12. Engagement with indigenous youth: Gard expressed the importance of including indigenous youth in the youth group. He mentioned a potential candidate, a member of the Muskogee tribe, and the need to have diverse representation.
- These are the main follow-ups and action items discussed in the transcript.

Outline:

- Outline:
 - I. Introduction
 - A. Overview of the meeting
 - B. Discussion on summarizing and questions asked (00:10-00:21)
 - C. Sending notes and taking notes alongside (00:40-01:45)
 - II. Agenda and Website Updates
 - A. Reviewing what's been going on since the last meeting (06:44-07:07)
 - B. Populating the website and working with individual cities (07:07-08:12)
 - C. Available documents and resources on the website (08:12-09:10)
 - D. Accessing the calendar on the website (09:10-10:00)
 - III. Database Transfer and Charter Promotion
 - A. Status of the database transfer (10:00-10:30)

- B. Listing charter events on the Events Uri (10:30-11:57)
- C. Discussion on promoting the charter with celebrities (14:03-16:14)
- D. Progress on creating a guidebook (16:14-18:55)
- IV. Certification and Community Involvement
- A. Collaboration on community intelligence dashboard (19:05-20:22)
- B. Notes from fireflies and ongoing conversations (20:22-22:56)
- C. Importance of certification and global community involvement (22:56-24:52)
- D. Exploring the ambassador role (24:52-25:47)
- V. Dashboard and Collaborations
- A. Integration of Impact report into the dashboard (25:47-27:14)
- B. Formation of a group for collaboration (27:14-30:03)
- C. Collaboration with Emory and Shift program (30:03-34:25)
- D. Incorporating the charter into GCC programs (34:25-36:28)
- VI. Action Items and Strategy
- A. Action items and next steps (36:52-39:51)
- B. Working on role description for the youth strategist (40:34-44:36)
- C. Formation of a strategy team (44:36-46:18)
- D. Communication and collaboration efforts (46:18-47:01)
- VII. Trauma and Well-being
- A. Continued meetings and discussions on trauma (47:01-49:52)
- B. Focus on human systems, mindfulness, and well-being (54:38-55:38)
- VIII. Conclusion
- A. Dashboard development and progress update (55:38-56:13)
- B. Closing remarks and appreciation (57:20-1:00:07)
- Note: The timestamps mentioned are approximate and may vary slightly depending on the actual duration of the sentences.

Notes:

- Marilyn Turkovich mentions that the summary does a good job of summarizing and they had 72 questions they asked each.
- Conoly Barker wants Marilyn to send them everything so they can take notes alongside.
- Marilyn Turkovich is surprised by Conoly's request and seems to agree.
- Gard and Cristina Gzz greet each other.
- Cristina suggests starting with a minute of silence.
- Marilyn Turkovich agrees and suggests Gard lead the silence.
- Gard guides everyone to take a deep breath and notice their bodies and thoughts.
- Marilyn Turkovich plans to bring the group out of silence with a brief word.
- Gard expresses gratitude for the silence that informs and transforms.
- Cristina asks Marilyn to start with the agenda.
- Marilyn mentions that they have been populating the website and working with individual cities to create their pages.
- Marilyn lists some items found on the website, such as minutes of meetings, legal documents, and charter videos.
- Marilyn discusses the approach Jennifer can take with the people she knows.
- Cristina mentions working with the internet in the office.
- Marilyn talks about creating a program for certifying ambassadors and hopes to have a draft form ready by the next meeting.
- Marilyn mentions the need for milestones in the action plan for ambassadors.
- Marilyn sent a long letter to the group and Arun.
- Gard asks if there are any questions.
- Ole Kjørrefjord comments on starting to work with Juan Carlos Kaitan on creating a community intelligence dashboard.
- Marilyn had an exhilarating conversation with Nipun Mehta and Prita Bansal and recorded it.

- Marilyn plans to share notes from the conversation with Ole.
- Marilyn mentions generating 72 questions that need answers.
- Cristina suggests adding their experience in certification.
- Marilyn thanks Cristina and mentions writing alongside a manual.
- Marilyn wonders how to bring intimacy and grounding to the global community.
- Marilyn mentions the challenge of clearly writing down their ideas.
- Marilyn is excited to discuss the ambassador idea with lead volunteers.
- Gard mentions an impact report and suggests putting a group of individuals together.
- Marilyn mentions having a good meeting and making contact back and forth.
- Emory will make an announcement about a program called Shift.
- Gard asks about the incorporation of C Learning and Think Equal.
- Marilyn mentions Rick's desire to incorporate the charter into a program.
- Ann Helmke mentions not having much to report.
- Ann mentions something from the agenda but doesn't finish the sentence.
- Ole Kjørrefjord mentions starting a strategy team.
- Gard discusses communicating the push for a global map with small, intimate groups.
- Marilyn mentions ongoing conversations through email with Babs, Anum, and Moses.
- Marilyn mentions dollars and talks about the program.
- Gard mentions talking to Thomas Hubble, an expert on trauma.
- Laura emphasizes the importance of small intimate circles.
- Laura suggests replicating the model locally with a few examples.
- Laura mentions the importance of language and discussing well-being.
- Gard suggests putting together a dashboard.
- Marilyn agrees.
- Cristina adds something.
- Gard concludes the meeting.
- Gard thanks the AI for taking notes.